

The J. E. Beale General Store was situated beside the railroad tracks close to the depot at Haymarket. This general merchandise store sold everything from groceries to harvesting machinery. The soda fountain in the early 1900s was a popular place with the nearby residents. James Beale was the operator of this store from 1903 to 1915